

RANSOM BANK NOTES CARRY HOPES OF LAW

Federal Agents Stress Importance of Telling of Receipt

(Copyright, 1935. By The Associated Press.)
Tacoma, Wash., June 4.—(AP)—"Innocent bystanders" who receive one of the 20,000 Weyerhaeuser ransom bank notes, will be compensated by the department of justice agents said here today.

"Nobody will lose their money," a spokesman said. "The department will take the bill and see that another is given to replace it. We also want to emphasize the importance of remembering from whom the ransom bill was received."

It was reported that when the $200,000 worth of ransom bills are recovered they will be destroyed to avoid confusion by continued circulation of the advertised money. Other bills of different numbers will be issued.

The serial numbers of the bills were circulated by the government as a means of finding the kidnapers, believed to be a north-west gang.

Seeking Hideout
State patrolmen continued their highway blockade and were reported to have resumed the search they started yesterday for the pair in which 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, son of a wealthy lumber family, was kept until bought back by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser Jr.

The patrol search was believed to center around Issaquah, about 12 miles east of Seattle, near where the kidnaped lad reappeared Saturday after being gone nearly eight days. Authorities here refused to acknowledge that there was such a search.

Ten or twelve new federal men arrived in Tacoma yesterday, raising the total to about 30 working out of the Tacoma office. About twenty more were reported working out of Seattle.

Agents in Canada?
Two federal agents were reported to have made a hurried trip into eastern Washington yesterday to run down one of the flood of "hot clues." It also was believed that several department of justice men were in British Columbia on a similar mission.

Despite the activity, the designated spokesman for the investigators confined his comment to a succinct "we are investigating along routine lines. We expect nothing to turn up within the next few hours."

The federal men on the job scoffed at reports that the Barker-Karpis gang was involved and reiterated it yesterday when Volney Davis, arrested in Chicago, pleaded guilty in St. Paul to complicity in the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer kidnaping.

George's uncle, F. Rodman Titcomb, general manager of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. here, said the automobile found in Seattle last Saturday and impounded by the federal men belonged to him. It bore stolen license plates, Titcomb's having been removed. Titcomb refused to say whether he paid the ransom and would not comment on reports that the kidnapers set him at foot by stealing his machine when he paid the ransom.

Volney Davis Betrayed by Woman With Whom He Had Been Seen Many Times Since Escape at Yorkville

St. Paul, June 4.—(AP)—A woman with whom he had been keeping company betrayed Volney Davis, Barker-Karpis gangster who yesterday pleaded guilty to conspiracy to kidnap Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

Davis' arrest brought the federal government's score in the $200,000 abduction to nine in jail. Four others are dead, five were acquitted and eight are still at large.

The Major Issue

Oregon, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois are agreed, Lowden said today, that the 1936 presidential campaign will be fought over what Lowden called "the proposed changes in the form of government."

Hoover, who motored here with his close friend Arch W. Shaw of Chicago, an investment banker, spent the night as former Governor Lowden's guest at "Sinnissippi Farm." Hoover made no statement about their discussions before he left the palatial farm estate for Chicago. Lowden was at least willing to say what subject engrossed the two. He said:

"Mr. Hoover and I discussed the proposed changes in the form of the American government that are emanating, principally, from Washington."

"Do you expect it to be a major issue?" he was asked.

"Yes," said Lowden.

MISSOURI RIVER NOW CENTER OF FLOOD DANGERS

Water Receding in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado Streams

Junction City, Kas., June 4.—Water burdened streams of Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri lashed into new lowland areas today to continue their wide-spread destruction.

As the meandering Republican river returned to its banks along its 200-mile course in Nebraska, the junction of the North and South Platte rivers was viewed as a possible danger point in the western part of that state.

In northern Kansas, the Republican river was receding, but the Kaw was forcing families to flee as its muddy water rolled eastward. The Missouri—the Big Muddy—covered thousands of acres of farmlands and crews of laborers struggled to maintain strategic levees along its 400-mile course between Kansas City and St. Louis.

In addition, numerous smaller streams were out of their banks in all three states.

Death Toll Unknown
The death toll was not known. An Associated Press survey showed 94 unofficially listed as dead in Nebraska, but State Senator W. C. Bullard of that state estimated the total at 140. Scores still are missing.

Eight deaths have been recorded in Kansas and three in Missouri. Extent of the property damage likewise is unknown. The property loss in Nebraska has been placed at $11,000,000 in addition to $2,000,000 in damage to highways and bridges. The total loss in Kansas was placed at $2,000,000, half of which was to highway. Missouri's estimate was upward of $2,000,000.

An incomplete survey by the Red Cross showed 1,400 families in Nebraska left homeless by floods in Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado, the states held in the grip of high waters last week.

The rise in the South Platte river came to a standstill at North Platte, Neb., last night, and hope was expressed that the crest of the north fork's flood would not reach the junction until the waters in the other stream had receded. The only highway connecting flood-stricken McCook with the outside world still was passable.

Student Turning to Stone Still Hopeful

Berkeley, Calif., June 4.—(AP)—In a seemingly hopeless race against death, Albert Hagedorn, Jr., 20-year-old university student, is trying to become doctor before he turns to stone.

The young medical student at the University of California labors nearly 16 hours a day over his books and back of a counter in a chain grocery store in the faint hope he can save himself, or at least others, from the rare and slow death caused by calcification. He works in the grocery store to help pay for his studies.

Young Hagedorn admits only a miracle of medical science can save him but still he hopes somehow to be kept from turning to calcium carbonate. His body began to slowly turn to stone nearly seven years ago. Medical scientists know of only 28 sufferers from the disease.

Paw Paw Man's Final Will Probated Today

The will of the late Nathaniel E. Hammond of Paw Paw, who passed away May 3 of this year, was admitted to probate before Judge Leach in the county court yesterday afternoon. The widow, Mrs. Lillia R. Hammond, is named administratrix of the estate. The will provides that the widow have the sole use of all properties for the duration of her life time after which the estate reverts to a grandson, Chester E. Hammond, with the provision that he pay to May and Fletcher Hammond, grandchildren of the deceased, the sums of $500 each. Real estate valued at $15,000 and personal property of the value of $3,000 is listed.

Two Meet Death in Pekin Traffic Crash

Pekin, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—Frank L. McGrew, news editor of the Pekin Journal, was instantly killed in an automobile accident near here last night.

Lawrence Duffin, 35, Pekin, died several hours later in a hospital. Witnesses said that Duffin's automobile apparently went out of control and crashed into cars driven by McGrew and Lionel O'Keefe, 24, Jamaica, Mass.

McGrew, a veteran newspaperman at Peoria, suffered a broken neck and skull injuries. He was returning from a meeting of the Pekin board of which he was secretary. He is survived by Mrs. McGrew, auditor of the Journal.

TWO OFFICERS "SNATCHED" BY TWO FUGITIVES

Sheriff, Deputy Taken from Missouri to South Sioux City

Sioux City, Ia., June 4.—(AP)—Two fugitives who kidnaped a Missouri sheriff and deputy near Rockport, Mo., yesterday released the officers near South Sioux City early today and then apparently made good their escape.

The officials, forced at gun-point to accompany the abductors on a circuitous 350-mile ride, were Sheriff Herman Bredensteiner and Deputy Sheriff Dean James, both of Rockport.

Police of Sioux City and South Sioux City scoured the surrounding country and issued a warning for the men.

The kidnaping took place at Nishnabotna, 11 miles from Rockport, when the officers went to investigate a suspicious car without license plates. One of the abductors directed them to his car and then drew a gun while the officers were off guard. The men forced their prisoners into the sheriff's car and sped away.

Had Wooden Leg
Bredensteiner said one of the men, who had a wooden right leg, told him "I have to do this because I can't afford to be picked up."

In the fugitives' own car which had been repaired in Nishnabotna after a wreck, Missouri officers found a money bag bearing the name of the Mount Airy (Ia.) State bank. The bag contained about $6 in nickels and dimes. No information had been received by Iowa Bureau of Investigation headquarters of a robbery near Mount Airy.

When released the sheriff was given back a watch taken from him earlier in the ride and one of the abductors tossed him $2 to "get something to eat with."

The unit consists of 120 cavalrymen and their horses, the remaining portion being motorized. The troop is on a practice march from Fort Sheridan through Illinois into Iowa and return to their post, Hendricks, Trudy Ann Prewitt.

Oklahoma City Has Packing Co. Walkout

Approximately 350 employees of the Wilson & Co. packing plant walked out shortly after 10 o'clock today and immediately started forming picket lines.

Two slight explosions, heard all over the packing plant area, were the signal for the walkout. Source of the explosions could not be determined. The men filed out of the plant in orderly fashion.

A strategy meeting of packing union leaders was called for noon by Harry L. Carson, union president.

Union workers at the plant assert seniority and collective bargaining rights were violated by the plant.

Binghamton, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—A pledge to adhere strictly to NRA regulations which "promised" an improved future for the working people, has been given by more than 17,000 Endicott Johnson shoe workers. The promise was made last night by George F. Johnson, chairman of the board of the corporation, in a reply to the employees' pledge of confidence in the management and its announced plan to stand by NRA policies.

Horsenaping?

A possibility that "horse-naping" activities may have extended into Lee county was being investigated today by the local sheriff's office, following a report to Sheriff Miller by Gus Schultz who resides west of Nachusa that he had found a strange young boy gelding tied in his barn when he arrived at his home last evening.

The presence of the strange animal prompted Mr. Schultz to make an investigation before reporting the incident to the sheriff. He learned that a truck in which two men were riding hauling two fine horses, arrived in Nachusa yesterday afternoon and the strangers inquired the direction to the Schultz farm. There was no one at home when the truck arrived at the farm and the animal was unloaded, led into the barn and tied in a stall. The second horse was hauled away. Mr. Schultz was at a loss to know who might have left the horse at his farm and reported the incident to the sheriff's office which started an investigation.

"SMILING BOB" SWEITZER HAS FIGHT ON HAND

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—Pressure from two sources converged today on Robert J. ("Smiling Bob") Sweitzer to endanger his position as Cook county treasurer. The crisis will come tomorrow when he appears before the board of county commissioners in answer to a demand that he restore immediately $414,129 he allegedly was short in his accounts during the 24 years he was county clerk.

The commissioners reversed themselves a few hours after they granted Sweitzer another week to bring in the money and yesterday ordered him to settle up tomorrow or expect a request that he resign.

The revised attitude of the commissioners, brought on by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's advice to the board as to its duties and powers, was accompanied by decision from the 19 companies which furnished Sweitzer's $3,000,000 bond as treasurer that they would withdraw their guarantee.

With his bond withdrawn, Sweitzer would automatically be disqualified as county treasurer, but the commissioners could grant him 30 days to post new bond if they desired.

RFC Willing to Loan Milwaukee Rd. Huge Sum for Reorganizing

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Corporation today offered to lend $24,000,000 to aid the reorganization plans of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad.

In a letter to the carrier, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the RFC, said his corporation would be willing to lend the carrier "all or any part of $12,000,000" at 4 percent for ten years, in addition to purchasing $12,000,000 of four percent equipment trust certificates.

The corporation's offer was contingent upon reorganization plans which the carrier had been discussing with the RFC.

The railroad is already indebted to the RFC to the extent of $17,500,000. The reorganization plans, which are acceptable to the government agency, will be filed by July 1.

New French Premier Accorded Confidence

Paris, June 4.—(AP)—The Chamber of Deputies, which for nine years he ruled as its president, today gave Fernand Bouisson, France's new premier, a rousing vote of confidence in answer to his demand for a virtually free hand in dealing with the nation's financial crisis. The vote was 390 to 192 in his favor.

The premier pledged "brutal and decisive" action against those who "attack our gold" in a ten minute ministerial declaration today.

MEXICAN CHURCH RAZED BY FLOOD 400 MEET DEATH

Most of Victims Drowned as They Prayed to Patron Saint Monday

Mexico, D. F., June 4.—(AP)—A daytime check of the flood-ravaged part of the federal district in the Valley of Mexico revealed today that approximately 400 persons had perished, a majority of them dying as they prayed to San Pedro's patron saint—a saint to whom they annually voice their supplications for the benefits of rain.

Working by the light of flickering candles on the still gayly bedecked altar of the San Pedro church, residents of the town dug out the bodies of 255 flood victims from under six feet of mud in the church where it was estimated 350 died, trapped by the flood waters.

The total of 400, it was believed was reached as others died in five affected towns in the area, when the wall of water swept down into the valley.

Many Children Victims
Firemen and policemen aided the villagers in removing the bodies, many of which were those of children, from the inside and the front of the church structure.

The neighboring communities of Xochimilco, 12 miles from here, Milpa Alta, San Gregorio and San Pablo also suffered numerous casualties.

Torrential rains, starting at 2:30 P. M. yesterday, sent mountain streams roaring out of their courses into the villages below. Within two hours roads were impassable and fields became vast, surging lakes.

Those who escaped from the San Pedro church said the swiftly rising water burst the walls of the structure and poured in on the worshippers before they were aware of the threat to their lives.

Building Collapsed
Later the building collapsed, burying the dead and dying beneath its debris.

Villagers interfered with the efforts of federal troops to extricate bodies from the ruins, threatening to attack the soldiers because they believed the disaster to be an act of vengeance sent from heaven.

Earlier in the day authorities had entered the church, halted the service and arrested the priest. The superstitious Indians insisted the floods were retribution for this interference with their worship.

Fear for Safety of 2 Illinois Couples

East St. Louis, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—Fears were held today for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lorius of East St. Louis and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of DuQuoin, Ill., who have been missing since May 22 when they last wrote friends and relatives from Albuquerque, N. Mex.

Their automobile, in which they were returning from a tour of the west, was found abandoned May 28 in the Dallas, Tex., business district, where it had apparently been for three days.

The two couples had planned to cross the border from Texas into Mexico on a sightseeing trip.

Young Son of a Former Dixon Couple is Dead

He leaves to mourn his passing his mother and father, one brother William, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Roberts and E. Hucker, eight uncles, eight aunts and seven cousins. Funeral services will be held at 3:30 P. M. Wednesday at the Rosman, Behling, Kinzer funeral parlors in Beloit with interment at that place.

FERA Unwelcome

Guernsey, Wyo., June 4.—(AP)—Wyman Haynes and his father were happy in their simple life as hermits until the FERA came along. For years the two lived in almost inaccessible Sawmill Canyon, with a dugout for a home and a hole scraped out of the dirt floor for a bed. Burlap rags served as clothes, wild game and roots provided food. They never wore shoes. The elder Haynes forgot his first name.

Came the FERA set-up. The two were supplied with clothing and moved to a house. Beds and bedding were furnished them. But the new environment was disappointing. They longed for the dugout, and their "store clothes" itched.

Finally they rebelled. When county officers called on them, they were attacked with butcher knives. After some maneuvering the two hermits were taken into custody and now are being held for a sanity hearing.

POSTPONE BONUS VOTE UNTIL '36

Patman Bill Forces Abandon Fight This Session of Congress

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—Bonus forces in congress decided today to abandon their battle for cash payment at this session of congress and to concentrate on a campaign with the people for enactment of the Patman inflationary bill next session.

That will put the contest just before the presidential election. Some bonus supporters believe that would be good strategy.

A joint conference between house and senate leaders of the Patman bill forces agreed almost unanimously that President Roosevelt's opposition would require "too serious a sacrifice" to make a compromise possible at this session.

Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), who presided, announced that "we decided to refer the question of the Patman bill back to the people and start a campaign for adoption of the bill at the next session."

Turn Down Compromises
The conference turned down almost unanimously suggestions for compromising the issue at this session. One compromise proposal worked out by Senator Thomas would have provided for a cash payment of about 90 percent of the face value of the certificates.

Thomas was reported, however, to have voted with the majority in deciding not to compromise in the face of a poll of the senate showing that nothing could be passed over a veto except the Harrison bill or something like it.

Louis Ward, representative of Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit, and officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars attended the session in addition to Patman leaders in the house and senate.

"A canvass of the whole situation," Thomas said, "discloses 75 percent of congress is in favor of the Patman bill. A further canvass shows the soldiers would have to make too serious a sacrifice to secure enough votes to override a veto."

"The new congress convenes in January, only seven months hence. We decided to refer the question of the Patman bill to the people and start a campaign for adoption of the bill next session."

British Princess Had Gland Operation Today

London, June 4.—(AP)—The Princess Royal, only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, underwent a thyroid gland operation today. The princess is the wife of the Earl of Harewood.

A physician's bulletin issued last night said she had been suffering from exophthalmic goitre.

A complete cure is not being effected by medical treatment, the bulletin said. "It has therefore been decided to treat the thyroid gland by operation."

Butcher Hacked Girl to Pieces in Los Angeles After She Told Right Name, Then Hanged Self in Tree

Los Angeles, June 4.—(AP)—Linking the two deaths as a murder and suicide, detectives searching for the butcher knife slayer of an attractive young woman identified as Dolores Dufae, 26, found the body of George Booth, 25, hanging from a tree near his home.

Police found a note at Booth's home which announced he was going "to meet my Maker."

"I have just killed Dolores after she told me her right name," it added.

The young man's father summoned detectives to his home and said he heard his son come in earlier in the night and then leave. He found the note.

"RESTRICTED" NRA PLAN OF FDR, CABINET

"Piece-Meal" Legislation Will Be Asked by Administration

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and his cabinet decided today to press the New Deal program in congress, including resurrection of NRA on a restricted basis to conform to the Supreme Court decision.

The social security bill was re-examined especially, and found to rest—in the words of Secretary Perkins—on "sound constitutional grounds."

The Wagner labor disputes bill and the Guffey coal stabilization bill also were reviewed. No immediate announcements were made on these.

The meeting lasted an hour and a half. Speaking to reporters as she left the White House, Miss Perkins said "the social security measure is not based on the interstate commerce clause, but rather on the Federal government's taxing clause. 'We have consulted eminent lawyers on this legislation.'"

The NRA legislative program was described to newsmen as likely to be a "piece-meal" proposition. Details were withheld.

At a luncheon in the Press Club, meanwhile, General Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA leader, said no constitutional amendment was necessary to protect NRA principles.

Gen. Johnson Critical
He criticized Senator Borah (R-Iowa), and Donald R. Richberg, present NRA leader, and called upon "ordinary American cooperation and common sense" to save the blue eagle.

When word of the cabinet session reached the Capitol, where various legislators were arranging for a talk with Roosevelt later in the day, it was assumed the emergency action will restrict the NRA principles of minimum hours and maximum wages and fair trade practices to strictly interstate commerce business.

On possibility was that Congress would be asked to define "interstate business."

The plans were to be made public at a special press conference late in the day.

Still Seeks New Basic Law
Indications were that the immediate legislation would not necessarily be considered final; but that Roosevelt would possibly seek a broadening of constitutional powers.

by the people to support the New Deal economic and social plans.

As the White House conferences proceeded, it was said by some New Deal sympathizers at the Capitol that the President had added the Wagner labor disputes bill and the Guffey-Snyder coal bill to his program for Congress.

A conference of congressional leaders was called by the President for late in the afternoon following the special cabinet session. It was expected details of the plan would be divulged at a press conference at 5 P. M. Eastern Standard time.

Roosevelt has a legislative program to propose as a stop-gap pending the results of his campaign for broadening of constitutional authority for the Federal government to deal with national economic and social problems.

No Hints Forthcoming
Pending conclusion of the day's conferences, the White House declined any hint of the nature of the President's move.

Emphasis was laid on the fact, however, that the President had told Richberg last night not to arrange for dismissal of all of the 5,400 NRA employees on June 16 when funds expire.

The word "all" was emphasized, indicating a sharply restricted NRA to come within the limited definition laid down by the Supreme Court of what constitutes interstate commerce and the right of the Federal government to regulate.

It was learned that a transfer of the NRA activities to the Federal trade commission was not contemplated.

SOCIETY

Many Children Being Given Attention at Health Roundup Here

Many Dixon children of pre-school age are being given expert attention at the summer round-up of children at the Elks Club. The object of the round up is to examine the health of the average child of pre-school age and discover any defects which might hamper his normal progress through school.

Examinations are conducted on the basis of six main steps. A history of the case is taken, the child is weighed and measured, and a dentist examines the teeth. A vision test is then prepared, a competent physician gives a thorough physical examination, and the case history is checked by Mrs. Lucia Roberts, school nurse.

Six nurses are assisting the various doctors and four PTA mothers supervise the parents and children awaiting service. The associates and workers in the round-up expressed today their hearty appreciation of the Elks generosity in donating the upper floors of their spacious club house for the project.

The convenience of the rooms has greatly facilitated the work of the staff.

Dixon is fortunate in obtaining the services of Miss Nichols and Miss Irick, both state experts in this field. They have supervised the layout of equipment for the doctors.

The project is Dixon's first attempt to hold a summer round-up of children, and the movement has been advocated by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for the past decade, and for a much longer period by the State Board of Health. The community owes a debt of gratitude to Dixon physicians and nurses who have conscientiously donated their services for the project.

SEPARATIONS

By Joseph Fort Newton

IR James Barrie has a dainty little play about a girl named Rose Mary, who mysteriously vanished at the call of the "Island that likes to be visited." She is mourned by her friends as lost.

Suddenly, years later, she comes back untouched, unchanged, just as she was the day she went away. Life for her has stood still, and she wants to take it up again at the same point—but it cannot be done!

Alas, life for those who mourned her has not stood still. They are older. They are changed. The baby has grown up into a rough man of the world. It is all different—she alone is unchanged.

The moving tragedy of the third act is that her friends cannot take up the old relationships again, though they would if they could. Poor Mary has lost her place in the swift movement of life, not because any of them have ceased to love, but because she has lost touch.

Life has carried all her friends on and left her behind. It is the genius of the dramatist that he is able to reveal to us with so tragic a shock, how if we do not grow life runs away and leaves us.

How often two people are closely linked in friendship—then circumstance interferes. One is taken to another town, to another line of life; and one is left behind, and they slowly drift apart.

For a time they write regularly, then the letters become fewer, and finally they stop. Each is occupied with his own work, each has found new companions. When they meet again they are changed.

No doubt it is the same with those who leave us by death. We think of them as they were when they went away; but if they live at all, they too change, grow or decay, and that is what we forget.

We must not think of them as dead, else they will be dead to us. In our thought we must set them free, not bind them in one state. Life flows on, there as here, and we cannot fix it in one stay.

Life is a flowing stream; we cannot bathe twice in the same waters. We must go and grow with it or it will go away and leave us.

Detroit, June 4—(AP)—Birth control will be a major issue of the triennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs when it convenes here tonight.

The subject is included in what probably will be the most controversial of eight resolutions proposed for consideration by the federation in an eight day convention. Although the question was threatened out at the Hot Springs convention last summer before its acceptance, some opposition is expected here before it is finally acted upon.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, Mass., the national president, would make no prediction as to the fate of the resolution today.

The resolution states that the federation "indorses the principles of legislation for the dissemination of scientifically regulated birth control information, x x x as of utmost importance to all Americans in the interests of a vigorous and healthy population."

N. Side Brownie Revel Great Fun

A truck load of happy Brownies from Loveland and North Central schools, with several cars containing their mothers, made a jolly procession at eleven o'clock Saturday morning from North Central school to Lowell park. There the Brownies and their leaders played Brownie games and walked through the roads until lunch time. There was plenty of delicious food which everyone thoroughly enjoyed. After lunch there were more games and songs until time for the ceremonies. Blue attendance ribbons were awarded by the Brown Owls to Jeanette Andrews, Carmen Schofield, Pearl Lambert and Cecil Peck, for having been present at all Brownie meetings this year. And to Jean Marie Brown, Shirley Myers, Marilyn Griswold and Julia Joan Smith were red ribbons for having been present at all meetings but one. Mrs. W. R. Hardy, local director of Girl Scouting then took charge of the "Fly-Up" ceremony. With appropriate remarks she presented their wings to eighteen girls who flew up from Brownie-land to become Girl Scouts. The wings were found hidden in iris blooms and each girl was given her flower also. This group is proud of the fact that they all flew up on colored wings. The new Scouts were welcomed by Captain Reta Jean Keithley and Lieutenant Hazel Dixon into Troop IV, and Joan Ralston from that troop saluted them. The Grand Howl was then given by all the Brownies and the Good-bye Song was sung.

A light shower made everyone scurry to shelter, but the ride home in the truck with paper parasols was almost the most fun, and even the sun came out to smile also.

The success of the Revel is due in large part to the efforts of the Brownie leaders, Mrs. John Lockett, Mrs. Eleanor Brown, Mrs. I. B. Hofer, and Mrs. Carl Kling, and also to the efficient pack committees composed of Mrs. Carl Hasselberg, Mrs. N. H. Haefliger and Mrs. John Weiss and of Mrs. Gordon Andrew, Mrs. Hershel Moore and Mrs. Darrell Palmer.

Following is the list of Brownies who flew up into Scouting:

Darlene Bender, Betty Brainard, Charlene Enicher, Constance Bunnell, Rosanne Deutsch, Sarah Hasselberg, Pearl Lambert, Margaret Kling, Margaret Kohler, Mildred Hendricks, Trudy Ann Prewitt, Julia Joan Smith, Laura Williams, Carmen Schofield, Jane Ann Sharpe, Alberta Swanland, Theora Schryver and Patricia Weiss.

French First Lady Visits Washington

Washington, June 4—(AP)—Something new in the first lady line, a French first lady just off a record-breaking liner, captured the interest of the capital today.

Mme. Albert Lebrun came here with the official Normandie party, a last night in New York. The program called for her to make a formal visit to Mrs. Roosevelt, take her place in the receiving line of a reception in her honor at the French embassy; and have the President as her escort at a White House dinner.

After an overnight stay at the French embassy, Mme. Lebrun will have Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, as her hostess on a trip to Mount Vernon.

No other French "first lady" has ever visited Washington. Her visit to another country, apart from her husband, in his term of office, is something even the record-shattering Mrs. Roosevelt hasn't done. A year ago, Mme. Sacasa, wife of the president of Nicaragua, visited here—but she came as a former Washingtonian visiting friends, having lived here when her husband was a member of the diplomatic corps.

Wilkins-LeFevre Wedding Monday

June is the month of roses, of weddings and graduations, and oh, many nice occasions. It is the time of sunshine, and song and laughter. There are listed in this column today four or five weddings. When we say "sunshine and roses," it brings to mind one marriage in particular, that of Miss Genevieve Wilkins of Dixon, daughter of Mrs. Maude Wilkins of Mason City, Ia., and William LeFevre, of Sterling. The wedding took place at the parsonage to the First Christian church in Sterling last evening at 8 o'clock, with the pastor, Rev. James Q. Moore, officiating at the ring ceremony.

The young people were attended by Miss Miss Esther Rakow as maid of honor and Seth Yeager as best man.

The winsome young bride was modestly attired in a tailored suit of pink, wearing a pink hat with accessories in the same shade, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, to match her suit. Miss Rakow wore a smart tailored suit in blue, harmonizing prettily with the pink attire of the bride. Miss Rakow also carried pink roses.

After a wedding supper the young couple came to Dixon where they will make their home for the present with Mrs. Michael Callahan, 303 E. Third street, the bridegroom driving back and forth to work.

Mr. LeFevre is employed by the Lundstrom Floral Co. of Sterling. Mrs. LeFevre who spent Sunday and Monday with her mother and family in Mason City, returning for the wedding last evening, is a charming and attractive young woman. She is the cosmetician at the Ford Hopkins drug store and her sunny smile and courteous manner have won many customers and friends ever since her arrival here several months ago. Sterling and Dixon friends will unite in extending best wishes to these popular young folks.

MRS. HEILE RETURNS HOME TODAY

Mrs. Luis Heile of Chicago who has been a guest of the Misses Bells, is now visiting Mrs. Frank Rosbrook. Mrs. Heile is returning to her home today.

'BUNCH OF KEYS'

Hollis, Okla., June 4—(AP)—The famous "Bunch of Keys"—Hollis' quadruplet sisters—locked the door on their teens today. For the first time in history, as far as is recorded, quadruplets are celebrating their twentieth birthday.

There were four cakes bearing 20 candles each for the Keys sisters, Mona, Roberta, Mary and Leota, who were born to Mr. and Mrs. Flake Keys, June 4, 1915.

Their clothes are alike and they all play the saxophone, but on this business of being quadruplets and 20, their observations vary:

Roberta: "Just think! In one more year I can vote."

Mary: "I am not going to let being 20 cramp my style."

Mona: "I really regret leaving my teens."

Leota: "I still like the high school group, and I hate to grow out of that age."

There is no record in medical history that any other quadruplets or the offspring of higher multiple births, ever reached maturity.

Hansen-Gehant Wedding Monday

On Sunday, June 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hansen entertained forty immediate relatives at dinner in honor of their daughter Helen. A most delicious dinner was served at this time.

The table decorations were in pink and white flowers, and pink tapers.

On Monday morning at 8 o'clock at the parsonage to St. Patrick's church, Miss Helen Hansen became the bride of Robert Gehant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gehant. Reverend Father Thomas L. Walsh performed the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill, uncle and aunt of the bride, were best man and matron of honor.

The bride, a charming young woman, was dressed in a light blue suit, with white accessories, and Mrs. Hill wore blue chiffon with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Gehant will live in Elgin where he has a position with the F. W. Woolworth Co. He is a splendid young man with good opportunities for advancement. The romance started in the Dixon Woolworth store where the bride has been a valued employee, and where the bridegroom also worked, later being promoted and transferred to Elgin. The bride, a Dixon girl, attended the Dixon schools and graduated with the Dixon High school class of 1931.

Hosts of friends of both young people and their families unite in extending best wishes for happiness to the young folks. They left for Elgin immediately after the ceremony and congratulations Monday morning.

The Goeke flower garden was very much enjoyed and the delicious luncheon served and the pleasant social time together.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess and daughter for their very kind hospitality so much enjoyed by those in attendance.

CORN AND COTTON AND AAA

Force and interest are recognized in political science as principal motivating factors in government. If a project is in our interest, we never can be made to understand how it can be unconstitutional or why it should be refused as economically unsound or against public policy. It would be possible to destroy the republic by legislation that many people regard not only in their private interest, but for public interest.

All discussion of the agricultural adjustment act, commonly known as AAA, is based upon individual profit. Constitutionality has been beside the point and general welfare may not be discussed at all.

While the constitutional phase has its place, it is only natural that individual profit should be the test applied to the act and its administration, for it was devised to help the individual farmer.

Now we have a peculiar situation arising over the question of that individual profit. In the cotton section there is widespread revolt against operation of the adjustment program. In the corn-hog section there is widespread approval of it.

We dismiss the corn sealing program as not a part of the adjustment operation. That merely was a case of providing credit to farmers who could not obtain bank credit to enable them to hold corn back from market until better prices could be obtained. Adjustment of acres is the point of disagreement.

How far the farmers of the corn belt go in analyzing the causes of present conditions is problematical. Certainly a large proportion will say that they are better off than they were two years ago, as they are, and will attribute their situation to the AAA. Some attribute much of their condition to political causes and others say they pay little attention to politics and do not have much confidence in the politicians and their doings in Washington.

One outstanding fact is that the drought through the wheat and the corn area so reduced production that the surplus, which for years had hung over midwest farmers, was wiped out. Prices ascended along with the thermometer last summer and they stayed along with the drought. This would have happened had AAA never been heard of.

However, the agricultural adjustment act provided some frills that the drought did not offer. It paid the farmers for farming the acres taken out of production. Some farmers received full price for corn not produced on farms where nothing was produced because of drought, which was pretty good for such farmers. They received pay for hogs they did not raise, which also was pretty good in a drought year when high prices would have been paid for corn with which hogs could be finished. It was not necessary to pay the high prices for corn for feeding, because the imaginary hogs already were on the market—or off the market.

Drought raised the prices of grains directly and the prices of animals indirectly. For that the AAA can claim no credit. For the payments for acres not planted and for hogs not marketed and for pigs bought and slaughtered with great waste of food, the AAA is entitled to the credit.

Net results in the corn-hog area have been that the farmers have turned a year with some profit and more available cash than when grain did not pay the freight and some meat animals were marketed in similar situations.

At least there is not much controversy in the corn-wheat-hog area over the AAA. It is conceded that farmers who already had reduced acres and had turned to legumes are getting the worst of it, and that as a definite and permanent policy it may be questionable, but as an experiment it has much more to recommend it than had the NRA which was set up to offset what AAA might do and did offset much that it did. Except for the drought, the one would have practically offset the other and the government action would have shown up as a blank.

Down where the cotton blossoms grow it is different.

There is a bitter controversy in the south over the merits of the AAA as it is applied to the cotton plantations and the cotton industry. There is territory in the old south, east of the Mississippi river, where production cost is high compared with the wider spaces and massed operation of Texas, as we understand it. Pressure for reduced acres has been more largely in some of these high-cost states.

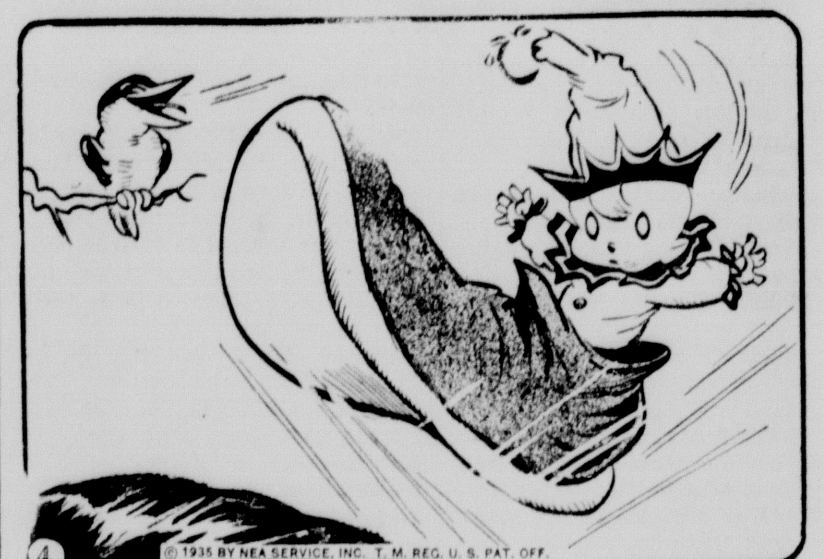

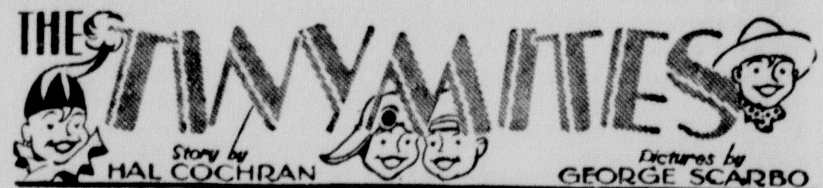

Adjustment of cotton acres actually involved plowing cotton under. There was no plowing under in the north because the planting season joined the legislative program better. Plowing under did not create the best psychology in some places. Cotton reduction was voluntary as was wheat and corn reduction. The planter did not have to sign the contract, but in that case he received no pay for acres plowed under. Next came the Bankhead law, which provided compulsory compliance with the order of reduction. That created more bad feeling. The Bankheads themselves were reported at one time to be cautioning against enforcement of their law.

Two men credited with being most cotton-wise are Senator Smith of South Carolina and Peter Molyneux, publisher of the Texas Weekly, Dallas, Tex. Both have been outstanding opponents of the cotton reduction program. They have pointed out that while cotton acres are being decreased in the United States they are being increased in Brazil and elsewhere. Brazil's share of the export market has amounted to 38 million dollars. That market formerly was ours. The world supply is constant and we lost our export market.

It is reported that Senator Smith subsidized and surrendered to the adjustment program comparatively recently. He is said to have given as a reason the fact that export markets now are lost and that the best the cotton states can do is to adjust themselves to the domestic demand. Molyneux still is fighting and he charges that AAA propaganda agencies have been undertaking to tell the people of the south that they are losing no cotton markets and that cotton acres are not increasing elsewhere. He still is fighting for the export market and lower tariffs in the United States on manufactured products, the old issue between the north and the south, between the republicans and the democrats.

The president has indicated that the adjustment act passed out with NRA, although the act itself was not in the litigation.

When Duncy's rubber tube went flat, we Scouty shouted, "Look at that! Our little pal is in some trouble. Now, what can we do?" "If we roll on, we'll be unkind," "cause then we'd leave him far behind," Then Duncy said, "I wish I had some way to follow you."

"However, I am stopped right here. There's nothing I can do, I fear. Why don't you all hop from your tubes, and let them roll away?"

Just then the rubber man appeared and all the Tynymites were cheered when he exclaimed, "Don't worry, tots. I'll gladly save the day."

"I have your tubes trained so they mind, and, very shortly, you will find they'll roll 'round in circles. You won't disappear from sight."

"Now, watch, and see what I will do for Duncy. Why, before I'm through, he'll be off on another ride, and all will be all right."

DAILY HEALTH

OUTDOOR PRECAUTIONS:

When summer invites greater outdoor activity, one should bear in mind certain pertinent precautions which will minimize the hazards and complications incidental to the almost unavoidable minor injuries encountered in such activities. Probably the most important "precaution" is to consider no injury too trivial to deserve and require attention.

No matter how superficial the scratch or minor the injury may seem, one should attend to it. Paying attention consists primarily in preventing the possible development of infection at the site of injury. This, if the skin has been broken, an antiseptic should be applied and the wound should be protected against dirt. Should one be without an antiseptic agent, soap and water may be used as a highly effective substitute. In fact, not a few scientists are of the conviction that thorough washing with soap and water is as effectively germicidal as is the application of most other antiseptic agents.

One should also always bear in mind the special hazard of puncture wounds. This is the type of wound resulting from a penetrating injury, such, for example, as stepping on a nail, jabbing oneself with a pick, etc. The special hazard in this type of wound is lockjaw. The lockjaw germ, which is commonly found in the soil, and particularly around stables and barns, thrives when it is sheltered against contact with the air.

Wounds into which dirt has gained access should be cleaned thoroughly. If necessary the wound should be surgically opened or enlarged. Do not, however, probe it, even with a sterile instrument, for this may result in forcing the infectious material deeper. Rather encourage free bleeding. An oxygen-liberating antiseptic such as hydrogen peroxide or a solution of potassium permanganate should be applied. A protective dose of tetanus antitoxin should be taken as soon as possible.

30 DRUM-BUGLE CORPS AT COM-PETITION HERE

Will Be Feature of American Legion's District Convention

About 30 drum and bugle corps from the northern half of Illinois, will be in Dixon on Saturday, June 29 to compete for honors at the district convention of the American Legion posts of the Thirteenth district to be held in this city on the two days, June 28-29. C. D. Higman of Wasco, department manager of the drum and bugle corps of the state, was in Dixon yesterday and conferred with the committee in charge of the corps and drill teams, which is composed of the following members:

Sherwood Dixon, chairman; Arthur Handell, Morris Rosbrook, Dudley Friedline, Herbert Nichols and Lloyd Lewis.

Manager Higman was gratified at the progress that has been made in securing attractive prizes for the visiting corps which have been invited to come to Dixon and compete for honors. He assured the committee that the prize list would attract about 30 of the larger corps of northern Illinois. Among these is the state champion corps from River Forest, which he felt certain would be present at the Legion convention the latter part of this month. This corps also captured second place in the national convention at Miami, Fla.

Details Completed

Details for the drum and bugle corps competition were completed at Monday's meeting. The corps will assemble at the new Legion headquarters in the old Masonic Temple building on First street and Peoria avenue and will march to the reviewing stand which will be located at the north entrance to the court house square where the competition will take place. Five judges, members of the Illinois Legion Drum & Bugle Corps Association, will award the prizes.

The competitive drill will be held at the high school athletic field, where the same five judges serving in the drum and bugle corps competition will decide the winners. These events will be staged on Saturday, and it is expected that several thousand visitors will be attracted to Dixon on that occasion.

Great Garbo Was Camera Shy Monday

Chicago, June 4—(AP)—Greta Garbo, enigmatic Swedish motion picture star, continued her journey toward New York and her native Sweden Monday after an hour and 15 minutes between trains in Chicago, during which time she almost—but not quite—evaded pursuers.

Anticipating an intrusion upon her privacy upon her arrival from California aboard the Santa Fe "Chief", Miss Garbo and a male traveling companion left the train at suburban Semaphore, several miles from the downtown station. Her next appearance was at the Union station here, 10 minutes before the Manhattan Limited of the Pennsylvania left for New York. She was first observed peering around a corner. Then, covering her face with her hand, she made a dash for the waiting train.

With her was Carter Gibson, an executive of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. Concealing her face in the collar of her coat, Miss Garbo was helped into the rear car by Gibson.

Then came a hurried journey through the rear Pullmans until the couple came to their own car, the fifth from the end. As the actress tried to conceal her features and dodge questioners she was heard to exclaim:

"Oh, I'm so tired of all this!" Finally reaching Miss Garbo's compartment, the pair entered and the door lock clicked. Later, however, she posed for photographers.

IN DEFIANCE OF SPANISH TYRANNY

It took nearly eight years for the people of Chile to gain the independence which a small band of native patriots had declared on September 18, 1810. This oath of independence, pictured on the one-centavo stamp of the special commemorative series which Chile issued in 1910, was practically the beginning of a revolutionary movement which freed the South American countries from the tyranny of Spain.

Chile's Spanish governor, Carrasco, tried to avert opposition by establishing a "congress" and electing himself president. But the leaders of the revolution saw through his deception, deposed him and took the oath of independence which actually was not accomplished until April, 1818.

Asks Nine Millions to Take New Census of Business Status

Washington, June 4—(AP)—A census of business was proposed by the Commerce Department Monday in an application for $9,370,000 of work relief money.

The department suggested that jobs for "white collar" workers be put to work January 1 collecting information regarding payrolls, receipts and other data which "would be of value in developing plans for business recovery and expansion."

Agriculture and manufacturing would not be included in the survey, officials said, but the results would be dove-tailed with findings of the 1935 census of agriculture and the biennial census of manufacturers.

MILK SUPPLY IMPROVED BY JANE ADDAMS

Worked For Higher Standard Enjoyed by Consumers

Urbana, Ill., June 4—Among the many memorials to the late Miss Jane Addams, famed Hull House founder and social settlement leader who died recently in Chicago, will be the pioneering work which she did almost 40 years ago in conjunction with the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois for the improvement of city milk supplies.

Present high standards enjoyed by consumers in Chicago and even in other communities have their foundation in this early work, it is pointed out by Dr. P. H. Tracy, associate chief in dairy manufactures at the college. Indirectly, this work and its subsequent developments have benefited milk consumers in many other cities, he said.

Alarmed at the quality of milk being offered to residents in the vicinity of Hull House, the late Miss Addams in 1898 enlisted the cooperation of the experiment station, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. When the work was completed, she, with Dr. H. S. Grindley, professor emeritus of animal nutrition, reported their findings in Circular No. 13, published in December, 1898, by the experiment station, on the subject, "A Study of the Milk Supply of Chicago."

"Overwhelming proof" that the milk supply of Chicago was remarkably poor was presented by the authors, they held that this was an injustice which should be remedied immediately and urged that immediate action be taken to improve the poor milk supply then going to Chicago people.

Since then there has been steady improvement in the supply, the most recent advance being the adoption of the Kelly milk ordinance which is modeled after the U. S. Public Health Service standard milk ordinance.

Almost 40 years ago when the late Miss Addams and the agricultural college were pioneering for an improvement of Chicago's milk supply, the chief concern was the matter of "watering" or adulterating milk.

The college's first work on the Chicago milk supply, in which the late Miss Addams figured, has been followed by other studies and publications, all of which have played a prominent part in establishing the high standards of the present day, Prof. Tracy said.

COW YIELDED MILK RECORD IN LIFETIME

The world's lifetime milk record was recently broken by the registered Holstein cow named Highfield Colantha Moore 508736, owned by John G. Ellis of Lee, Massachusetts. In eleven lactations this cow has an official credit of 205,928.5 pounds of milk containing 7,128.5 pounds of butterfat according to a report issued by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Her fat yield ranks third on the national list. It is rather hard to conceive what a prodigious amount 205,928.5 pounds of milk is. It is 102.9 tons, or enough to fill 2,394 ten gallon cans. An average dairy cow yields about 22,000 pounds of milk during her lifetime, so it would take over nine average cows to equal the yield of Highfield Colantha Moore. Two other cows, both Holsteins, have topped the hundred ton milk mark. Tilly Alcartra held the world's record for many years with a credit of 201,137.9 pounds. The famous Michigan Holstein, Traverse Colantha Walker, was in second place with a yield of 200,114.9 pounds. "Moore" is a good example illustrating the noted longevity of the Holstein breed. There are at least fifty-two cows of the breed in the United States with official records totalling fifty tons or more.

Hatbox Given Taxicab Driver Contained Babe

Chicago, June 4—(AP)—"Deliver this hatbox to St. Vincent's orphanage, please."

Taxicab driver William Korshak early Monday accepted the box "from a woman who had hailed him, pocketed the $1.50 given him in payment and set about fulfilling the commission."

Several blocks away his curiosity overcame him. He peeked into the box and then increased his speed. The box was delivered to the Rogers Park hospital.

"It's a perfect baby boy, not over two hours old and in perfect health," hospital attaches said.

WHERE FLOOD TOOK TRAGIC TOLL IN WEST

This map shows the area in which flood waters erased whole towns, dealt death to possibly 250 persons and inflicted property damage exceeding $10,000,000 in Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas. McCook became the center for relief work after record-breaking floodwaters swept down the Republican River, inundating towns, sweeping away farmhouses, drowning and marooning whole families. At Alma the crest of the flood lapped near the tops of telephone poles. The villages of Parks and Max were washed away. In the vicinity of Colorado Springs, where the floods originated, losses exceeded $1,000,000. There were estimated at $1,500,000 each at McCook and Oxford.

TERMITES CAN BE IDENTIFIED BY WAISTLINES

Have Practically Not Any Waistline At All

Not all ant-like insects now flying in swarms are winged termites, according to R. A. St. George of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, U. S. Department of Agriculture, who identifies hundreds of specimens sent in by home owners. Americans, Mr. St. George says, have become so apprehensive of termites that they suspect every tiny winged insect they see of belonging to one of the termite colonies that feed on woodwork in buildings, causing property losses running into millions annually in the United States. Although many of the insects under suspicion are members of the wood-mining family, some are ordinary winged ants that do not thrive on a wood diet.

Anyone, Mr. St. George says, can tell a winged termite from a winged ant by the difference in waistlines and in wings. Termites have very thick waists—practically no waistline at all. Their two pairs of transparent wings are nearly identical in size and shape—both rather slender and long, about twice the length of the insect's body. The winged ants often mistaken for termites have slim waists. In fact, they are nearly cut in two in the middle. And their wings do not match. The inner pair is much smaller than the outer set. The bodies of both insects are often of the same size—about 3-16 inch—and of the same color—black. Some ants, however, have reddish or brown bodies.

The winged termites that fly out in swarms in the spring and fall are not the destructive members of their highly specialized colonies. The tunnelers or workers are small, creamy-white forms—often erroneously called white ants—that work their way up through any wood they can reach. They often get into wood that is not in contact with the ground by building an earthen passageway or shelter tube over brick, stone, or concrete foundations. As they stay inside the woodwork, never exposing themselves to the light, their presence usually is unsuspected until floors or timbers begin to yield for no apparent reason or until swarms of the fliers appear.

The fact that the ground-dwelling termites cannot live without easy access to moisture, usually in the soil, makes their control possible. Insulating from the ground all woodwork in new buildings is a sure preventive of termite trouble. Houses already infested can be saved from further weakening by cutting the termites off from their water supply, either in the ground or in some inside leak, by insulating with concrete, stone, brick, etc., or by the use of noncorrosive metal termite shields. These more radical changes are desirable as they are of permanent value. If such repairs are out of the question the commission.

Coal-tar creosote is one of the standard preservatives for wood in contact with the ground. Poisoning infested soil with chemicals—trenching around the foundation and other supports—will give at least temporary relief. Crude liquid orthodichlorobenzene and para-dichlorobenzene—sold by dealers in insecticides—are promising poisons for soils. Where there are shrubs that might suffer from these poisons, carbon disulphide is the thing to use. Paradichlorobenzene, however, can be used with caution.

FRANK PRIEBE'S WEEKLY LETTER to POULTRY RAISERS

On some markets old hens are actually worth more than these first spring chickens!

That's an almost unheard of situation and it's certainly something to think about if you are considering selling any poultry.

Because of high egg prices this spring fewer hens than usual have been sold. And because of the unusually cold spring more have been eaten! That accounts for the fact that they are worth 50 per cent more than they were last year.

There are several reasons for the low price of this year's broilers (the young spring chickens that weigh from 1-2 to 2 lbs.)

Every year more chicks are hatched early and that has put a lot of this year's birds on the market already. On top of that, there are a lot of last season's broilers still left in storage. And then the weather, which has been so favorable for the sale of hens, has not been warm enough to create an appetite for "spring chicken."

Grow Broilers to Roasters. Even under more favorable conditions, I don't know whether they could have been sold for a much better price. I was talking the other day with a woman who has charge of a very successful cafeteria here in Chicago. She serves about two thousand meals a day and she uses a lot of chickens, but very few of these small broilers.

I pointed out to her that they were unusually cheap and ought to be a good buy. "I know it," she said, "but it is expensive to serve a bird that small regardless of how cheap it is."

A lot of the hotel and restaurant people will tell you the same thing. And since they use a large part of the poultry they raise, it is a pretty wise idea to raise the kind of birds they want.

Under those circumstances, what else is there to do but raise your spring chickens to roasting size rather than sell them as broilers.

Sell All Non-Producers. If you are going to sell any poultry, sell your hens.

The price of eggs is another reason for selling them—particularly those that aren't laying.

Eggs have been high all spring, but the price is slipping a little now, along with the prices of grain and cattle and hogs.

The weather is affecting the egg market, too. You remember that a year ago the thermometer had been hitting 100 degrees for some time already and he had had no rain for weeks.

This year the thermometer has managed to climb above 60 degrees only a few times, and a town in Nebraska that was practically burned up by this time last year has had rain for nineteen days straight!

Egg production started dropping about the first of May last year and here we are at the first of June and more eggs were received in New York last Wednesday than on any day yet this season.

That's the picture. And that's why, if I were to give you any advice, it would be to get every hen that isn't producing to market the first chance you have. Sincerely yours

Frank Pribe

MEASURE CORN LAND, PREVENT OVERPLANTING

Adviser Believes The Compliance Cost Can Be Cut

Compliance expenses on the 1935 corn-hog contracts can be kept down and overplanting avoided in Lee County, Farm Advisor Yale believes, if contract signers will measure their corn land carefully before planting.

By measuring his corn land, the producer will be able to tell when he has planted the acreage permitted by his contract. This will assure his being in compliance and will avoid the added expense and complications involved in bringing him into compliance.

Over planting is a source of added expense to the producer as well as the county association, since excess corn acreage will cause the producer to be penalized.

In the case of Group 1 signers, the permitted acreage, as stated in their applications, can be planted as soon as the season arrives. This group includes producers whose farming operations are the same as in 1934. Consequently they can be certain of their permitted acreage for 1935.

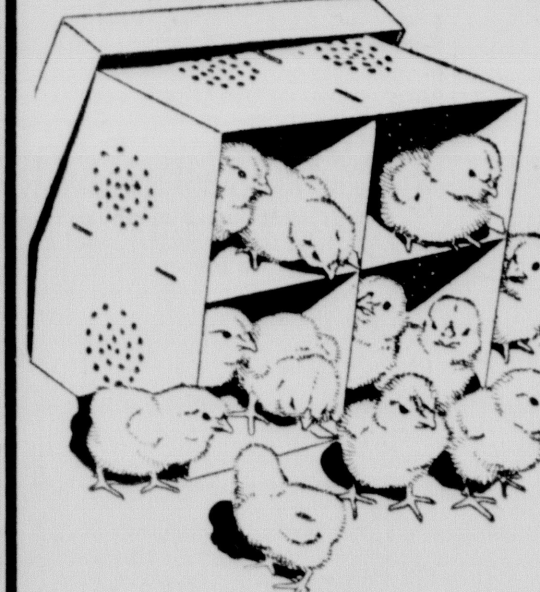

Group 2 and 3 signers, however, may have their acreage figures revised. Farmers in this group should measure their land and plant somewhat less corn than is stated in their applications. Then, if their acreage figures are revised downward, they will suffer little or no penalty.

Suggested methods for measuring irregular fields as well as ways of calculating acreage from these measurements may be obtained at the office of the Lee County Corn-Hog Control Association, at Farm Bureau office in Amboy, announces Mr. Yale.

The Hudson Bay company reports that over a period of more than 100 years there seems to be a nine or ten-year cycle in the number of fur-bearing animals, including muskrats, mink and red fox.

The periodic increase of these and other animals appears to hold true in the northern United States as well as in the Canadian Northwest.

The increase starts in the far north and gradually travels southward, but the period remains the same.

WINDOW SHOPPING

WINDOW shopping from a Central American train may be productive of almost anything from gorgeous Indian handicraft to tropical flowers and steaming tortillas, and the native vendors are one of the most entertaining sights along the rail routes.

One particularly popular train trip which presents a marvelous cross-section view of Guatemala is the 80-mile journey from San Jose, Pacific port, to Guatemala City, featured in connection with the fortnightly cruises between New York, the Spanish Americas, and California. As the train makes the ascent from the coast to the plateau, 5,000 feet above sea level, upon which Guatemala City, the capital, is situated, the temperature drops from tropic to temperate and the scenery changes accordingly.

The route passes first through sweet scented jungles and warm tropical lowlands lush with banana trees, through well kept coffee lands, and fields of sugar cane, and at an elevation of 4,000 feet skirts Lake Amatitlan which, with its fringe of hyacinths, stretches like a flower-framed mirror at the foot of volcanoes whose blue cones ring the horizon. The journey ends in the most urban of all Central American capitals—a city of modern buildings set among evergreens and feathery palms with a temperature of perpetual spring.

Paddy Completes Double Play Unassisted; Knacks, Buster Browns Tens Win

Knacks-Reynolds Tilt Goes Into Nine Frames

Smokey Joe Miller's Knack's Leaders climbed out of the cellar Monday night by administering the Adolf-less Reynolds Wires ten a 5 to 4 defeat at the Airport diamond. In the second game of the evening, the Buster Browns chastised the ambitious Bordens 7 to 4 and retained their share of the softball league lead. The first game was a nine inning struggle.

The Knacks displayed some of the nicest fielding seen on the airport diamond this spring, particularly Smokey Joe himself who snatched up many a sizzling grounder into his short stop garden and burned it over to C. Riley on first base for a put out. The Knacks took a 3-2 lead in the third inning by blazing home three runs, the first coming in on a walk when Ed Carlson was walked to first with the bases loaded.

Reynolds took the lead away in the first of the sixth, 4 to 3 when Sy Winebrenner on his second hit in three trips drove Eddie Carlson and Becker home, but the Knacks countered the tying run in their half of the frame and the game went into two extra innings before Dick Kehrt's single shoved home Bones Carlson for the winning tally.

One of the features of the game was the completion of a double play by Paddy McDonald unassisted. Paddy caught Scott's pop fly to short and then ran to the second corner to retire Dick Kehrt running to second from first.

BROWNS HOLD LEAD
Deits' inability to tighten up his pitching until the fifth inning, thereby allowing the Buster Browns 10 of their 11 hits, proved the responsible factor in the defeat of the Bordens 7 to 4 last night.

The Browns batsmen landed on him for a pair of blows in each of the first two frames, and a trio of hits in the third and fourth innings, converting two runs in the second, third and fourth frames, and another tally in the seventh off a hit by Kuhn.

Fordham, Browns hurler connected in the second inning for the first double of the evening. Cook led the fourth. The Bordens hurler landed on Deits for another double tightened up well in the sixth and seventh, retiring four men successfully via the strikeout route.

SAVAGE NEGROES IN SOUTH AMERICA

The Bushnegroes make up a savage tribe of Africans living on the upper reaches of the Surinam. Their ancestors were slaves brought from Africa some 200 years ago when the Dutch settled on the coast of Guiana. They escaped to the jungle and established themselves. They number about 30,000.

High Scholars Captured Five N. C. I. C. Titles

Dixon high school ended, Saturday, perhaps its most impressive athletic season in years, by winning the N. C. I. conference golf championship at Sterling.

Listed among the conquests of the Purple and White for 1934-1935 are five conference titles. They are the lightweight football championship, the lightweight basketball crown, the annual conference track championship won for the past four successive years, the loop doubles tennis title, and the final N. C. I. golf tournament.

An off day and an upset at the hands of Rochelle's never-say-die eleven blocked the Purple's chance for a heavyweight football crown, while defeat at the hands of DeKalb in heavyweight basketball frustrated a late season Dixon comeback which had disposed of Belvidere, Mendota, and Sterling. In tennis, DeKalb won the championship on a basis of points, but Dixon was master of the situation in the doubles division, DeKalb counting its points in a singles victory and second place in the doubles.

BABE LEAVES BRAVES AMID FINAL BLASTS

McKechie Turned on Bambino In Hot Finale

New York, June 4 —(AP)—A seething mountain of a man was George Herman Ruth 4 day, but all the arguments in the world, all the hot words, bitter recriminations that have passed between him and the Boston Braves couldn't hide this epochal line for baseball's history:

Babe Ruth is all done!
His final turbulent exchange with Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves and Bill McKechie, manager of the club, served today only to emphasize the completeness of the passing of the man who for 21 straight years has been making major league history.

The Babe admits he's through as a ball player, and it's hardly likely a single club in either major league would chance the grief that followed Ruth to Boston, even though he did bring swollen gate receipts along with it.

An Associated Press poll of the big league owners indicates that no one has anything but an academic interest in him and his future. The Babe nursed his wounds in his apartment, made plans for an extended vacation, and for all the golf he has wanted to play in the summer time all these years.

Gets Final Blast

He went out with the final blast of McKechie, whom he had taken great pains to defend, ringing in his ears. Since the Babe announced Sunday he was through, during the hot words that whipped back and forth between Ruth and Fuchs, McKechie kept his peace.

McKechie, in a formal statement, said yesterday: "I must state publicly that in justice to the action of Judge Fuchs with reference to Babe Ruth on Friday and Saturday of last week I pointed out to Judge Fuchs that the main trouble with the ball club was that it was not able to function properly with Babe Ruth playing the outfield."

"I frankly stated that certain actions of Ruth, while with the ball club, which I would absolutely forbid with any other member of the club, were responsible for the lack of discipline, and that unless Judge Fuchs could convince Babe Ruth to

Dixon High Adds Golf to 1934-35 Championships

Dixon won the 1935 N. C. I. conference high school golf meet Saturday, in which only three of the six schools were represented. The meet was held at Twin City Country club near Sterling.

The Purple and White foursome and Sterling Township high were the only schools to enter four men teams. Dixon counted 701 to Sterling's 786, thereby winning the championship trophy and Dick Durkes with a 163 scored lowest of any man in the tournament for individual honors. DeKalb entered only one man, Smith. He tied Longman of Dixon for second low individual honors with a 173. Durkes won his 163 on scores of 39-41-43-40. Rochelle, Belvidere and Mendota failed to enter teams.

Golf play was hampered by the gusty wind, and squalls of rain. The entire tourney was conducted under adverse conditions, so Dixon's accomplishment in winning was more impressive.

retire, I was unable to get any real discipline or proper spirit as manifested by the club prior to the acquisition of Ruth from the Yankees his spring."

That set the Babe roaring once again. "There's no basis for that at all," he shouted. "How could he say a thing like that? Anyway, I am all washed up with that outfit and I'm not going to carry on any more arguments."

Gopher Baseball Team Winners Of Big Ten Crown

Chicago, June 4 —(AP)—Minnesota, not given much of a tumble at the start of the season, is the 1935 Western Conference baseball champion.

The Gophers put the clincher on the honors yesterday by trouncing Wisconsin, 7 to 2, in the first of a two game series. The triumph gave Minnesota eight victories and two defeats, leaving Illinois, Chicago and Ohio State tied for second place at seven victories and three defeats.

Tommy Gallivan, Minneapolis star right-hander, gave the Badgers 10 hits, but was able to keep out of trouble except in the seventh inning when Wisconsin did all its scoring.

YANKS AVENGE SELVES ON A'S GET NINE HITS

No Longer Called the "Hitless Wonder" Ball Nine

By ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The wags who dubbed the Yankees the "hitless wonders" played a mean trick on the Athletics. Ranked by such a label, the American league leaders yesterday vented their wrath on the boys of Connie Mack, hung up their third straight win and snapped the Athletics winning streak at four games. They hammered out nine hits for 18 bases to chalk up a 7-4 victory, although the Athletics collected 11 safe blows, including two homers.

George Blaholder, who started in the box for Philadelphia, was treated so unkindly that he took refuge in the showers in the sixth inning. Dickey's home run sent Blaholder off with his fourth straight defeat since he went to the Athletics from the Browns.

That the Yanks went into the game with dire intentions was evidenced in the first inning when, with two aboard, Lazzeri smacked one to the outer reaches for three bases. In the second Crosetti whaled a double to account for another tally. The Yanks got three more in a sixth inning uprising capped by Dickey's circuit blow, and Ben Chapman hit a triple to send Combs home with the final run in the seventh with Mahaffey in the box.

Sees First Service.
Jimmy Deshong, who had languished on the bench all season, was called into service for the first time. He fared well until the ninth inning when he passed Fox to load the bases with one out, Murphy, who relieved him, forced Pinky Higgins to hit into a double play, ending the game. The victory increased the Yankees lead to two and a half games.

In the only other game in the American league, the Cleveland Indians waited until the 14th inning to unleash an attack that netted seven runs and an 11-4 victory over the downtrodden Browns.

DUTRA DEFIES OAKMONT TRAPS

Star Says Good Course Will Reward A Good Steady Game

Pittsburgh, June 4 — (AP) — Oakmont holds no particular horror for Olin Dutra.

As a matter of fact, the big and swarthy Californian who will start defense of the National Open golf title on that treacherous set-up Thursday has shocked native links disciples by refusing to shake in his boots every time he gazes down the first fairways and envisions the swift and slippery greens along the 18-hole route.

A well meaning spectator, viewing the 162 contestants in practice walked up to Dutra and said he always wanted to shake the hand of a champion. Dutra stuck out his big right paw obligingly and smiled a characteristic smile.

"Gee, Mr. Dutra," the spectator said, "I feel awful sorry for you having to defend the title here. Aren't you afraid; doesn't the course frighten you a bit?"

Dutra has the happy faculty of diplomatically saying the right thing at the right time but this time he exploded somewhat of a bombshell!

"No, I don't feel sorry for myself nor do I fear the course. It's the finest test of golf I've ever played and like all good courses it will reward good golf and only good golf wins championships."

"After all, why should I fear Oakmont any more than any of the other fellows. I'm not throwing the party here any more than I was at Marion a year ago. Wednesday night I'll hand over the championship cup to the United States Golf association and then I'll be exactly where I was a year ago this time."

Oakmont measures 6891 yards and calls for some distance, but more than that, accuracy is required. There are 300 treacherous traps strewn around the links and an off-line shot into any of them will more than likely result in a stroke penalty owing to the deep ridges.

Lee county's camporee will be held at the Amboy city park, Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15, and Ogle county's Boy Scouts will assemble a week later at the Pines State Park for their camporee. Applications for all Lee troops must be in the hands of Harold G. Boltz, field executive, by Saturday, June 8, and for Ogle troops by June 15.

At the camporees a series of instructions on Scoutcraft will be given by experts in the field. Each patrol will be scored in camping and field events to be given Saturday afternoons on the basis of instruction given Friday. Every Scout in the patrol will have part in the fulfillment of the project.

Inspection Friday

Only such equipment and supplies as may be carried by the troops to the camporees will be permitted by the Council. All patrols will be required to report for equipment inspection at headquarters tent on the field by 2:30 P. M. Friday evenings of both camporees will be devoted to an outdoor Court of Honor. Scoutcraft instruction will include packing, tracking, judging, map making, handicraft, freubuilding, cooking, pack making, tent pitching and camp beds. An interesting star study will be held at 9 P. M. Friday nights following the Court of Honor.

At the camporees, troops will prepare and cook their own meals, inspect the camp sites, and engage in routine camp activity all counting toward awards based on their efficiency for the duration of the camporee.

Supreme Court to Pass on HOLC Law Next Fall

Washington, June 4 —(AP)—The Supreme Court has agreed to rule next fall on the constitutionality of part of another New Deal measure—the Home Owners Loan Act of 1933.

It consented to review a decision of the Wisconsin Supreme Court holding that building and loan associations chartered by that state cannot convert themselves into federal associations.

This view has been stressed in criticisms by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the question of partisan control over banking was the central theme of a statement presented by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, who appeared before the Senate Sub-Committee on Banking and Currency hearings here. Mr. Hecht declared that his organization is actuated by a desire to be helpful to Congress "in enacting effective and workable banking legislation in the interest of all our people." He said in part:

"If it is finally decided that it is necessary to carry this legislation through at this session, we are strongly of the opinion that special care should be taken to keep our credit control and banking mechanism free from any sort of political considerations."

In making this statement I do not wish to appear to question the propriety of the Government's exerting a certain amount of control over banking operations so far as they affect the nation's currency and general monetary policy. Nor do we object to broad powers of supervision over the operation of our banking institutions because of the semi-public responsibilities they carry. But when it comes to such matters as the granting of credit and the making of investments by our banks, these are questions of business policy that surely should not be under the sole control of a board so constituted as to be dependent upon partisan or political considerations under any administration.

Dunham and Kelly Off to Ask 250 Millions

Chicago, June 4 —(AP)—Robert J. Dunham, named recently as Illinois Public Works Director, and Mayor Edward J. Kelly departed yesterday for Washington, seeking $250,000,000 of the $480,000,000 public works fund. Secretary Harold Jokes, Harry Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator and other officials doling out the funds will be interviewed while in Washington, they said.

Illinois Supreme Court Will Have Light Term

Springfield, Ill., June 4—(AP)—The June term of the state supreme court opens Tuesday afternoon with a light docket to be acted upon. The court will not meet again until October.

Justice Clyde E. Stone, of Peoria, only Republican on the bench, will assume the duties of chief justice. He succeeds Norman L. Jones of Carrollton.

Metcalf Will Not Meet Owens in Friday's Race

Milwaukee, June 4—(AP)—Because cold weather has retarded his training and also because he is engaged in law examinations, Ralph Metcalf, Marquette University sprinter, will not be able to engage Jesse Owens of Ohio State in a 100-yard match race at the Central Intercollegiate championships here Friday night.

Confessed Robber Took Own Life in Jail Cell

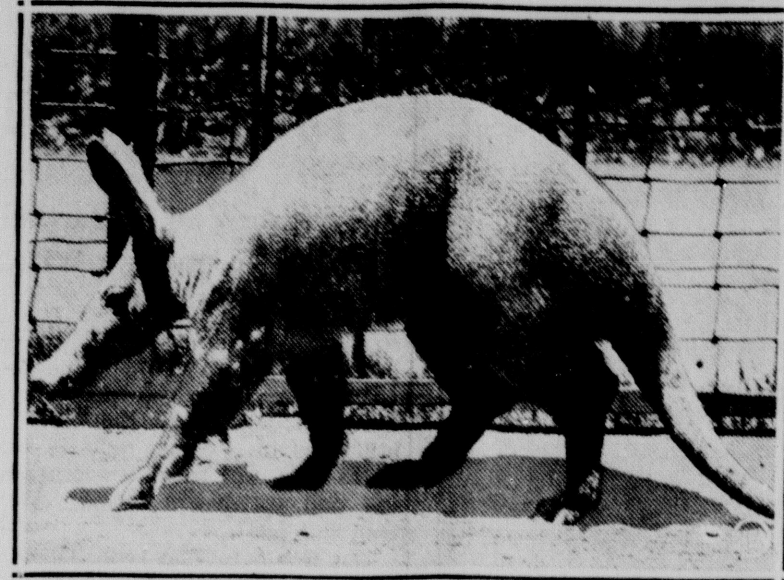

Chicago, June 4—(AP)—Captured a few minutes after he had participated in the robbery of a loop clothing store last Friday, Jerry Faigy, 18, who police said confessed to almost 100 robberies, hanged himself in his cell at police headquarters Monday. Police said the youth used a necktie and a leather belt to suspend himself from the cell bars.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety.—Psalms 4:8.

Peace is the evening star of the soul, as virtue is its sun; and the two are never far apart.—Colton.

A Nightmare? No. Just an Aardvark

Let Dr. Raymond Dittmars tell you about this argument for prohibition, which has just been added to the Bronx Zoo in New York. Begin at the anterior end of the animal, so called because it eats ants with the super-vacuum cleaner tongue; aft of the eyes, it has long rabbit ears and then comes a body like a pig. As we approach the posterior terminus we come on a tail which seems to be borrowed from a kangaroo. Put together all this spells Aardvark, one of the few in captivity.

Changes Urged in Bank Bill

Business Men and Bankers Agree in Objecting to Political Control Over Banks.

AMENDMENTS ARE SUGGESTED

Political Domination of Federal Reserve Board Declared to Be Undesirable for Depositors as Well as Their Banks.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Business men and bankers alike who have appeared before committees of Congress to present views regarding the Banking Act of 1935 have found common cause for criticism in those provisions which they agree would create the means for undesirable political control over the Federal Reserve System and thereby over individual banks throughout the United States. They have made the point that the undesirable condition would affect depositors in banks even more than the banks themselves.

This view has been stressed in criticisms by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and the question of partisan control over banking was the central theme of a statement presented by R. S. Hecht, President of the American Bankers Association, who appeared before the Senate Sub-Committee on Banking and Currency hearings here. Mr. Hecht declared that his organization is actuated by a desire to be helpful to Congress "in enacting effective and workable banking legislation in the interest of all our people." He said in part:

"If it is finally decided that it is necessary to carry this legislation through at this session, we are strongly of the opinion that special care should be taken to keep our credit control and banking mechanism free from any sort of political considerations."

In making this statement I do not wish to appear to question the propriety of the Government's exerting a certain amount of control over banking operations so far as they affect the nation's currency and general monetary policy. Nor do we object to broad powers of supervision over the operation of our banking institutions because of the semi-public responsibilities they carry. But when it comes to such matters as the granting of credit and the making of investments by our banks, these are questions of business policy that surely should not be under the sole control of a board so constituted as to be dependent upon partisan or political considerations under any administration.

The Basis of Sound Credit "The real conditions that create the necessity for the expansion or contraction of credit arise from the needs of agriculture, industry and trade themselves, wholly independent of the administrative policies of the party which happens to be in power. We feel that the financial requirements of the nation's business constitute a continuing economic process that is not related to political changes. The fundamental principles of sound credit do not vary with variations in public thought. All experience teaches that the quality of credit is sound only so long as it is based purely on the requirements of sound business. It is not sound when any other considerations or motives enter into its composition."

"The Banking Act would centralize in the Federal Reserve Board at Washington means aimed to control the supply of money in the country, which term includes the sum total of currency in circulation and demand deposits in the banks which become current through checks. The powers which it is proposed to give the Board are intended to enable it to influence the quantity of this deposit money through open market operations, the discount rate and reserve requirements."

The Need for Independence

"That is the reason why we are so strongly in favor of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it would be definitely removed from all political thought, influence and dictation. Its members should be free to study and to act in accordance with the needs and conditions of agriculture, industry and trade. The policies of the board should have no reference to the politics or the changes in politics of the national administration."

"In our studies of the bank bill, we have been strongly impressed with the fact that it would set up a situation under which the Federal Reserve Board and its policies might be subject to control from the political administration of the country. In saying this I do not charge that it is the intention of the present administration to bring about any undue control over the nation's banking mechanism. The point is that if the bill passed as now proposed, opportunity for control would be there for the use of the present or whatever future administration might be in power."

"Our criticisms of the bill are not aimed, therefore, at the motives of the present administration, but they are wholly impersonal and non-political and are aimed entirely at the basic principles involved."

Desirable Changes Proposed Careful study by his organization, Mr. Hecht said, had resulted in a number of suggestions for constructive revisions in the bill which he submitted to Congress. On the other hand, he declared that many of the changes proposed by the act in existing laws "are of a constructive nature and should have the support of bankers, if the method of appointment and tenure of office of the members of the Federal Reserve Board, in whose hands it is planned to concentrate greater power than ever before, could be so altered as to insure, as far as possible, the absolute independence of the Board from partisan or political considerations." He added:

R. S. HECHT

"Since the passage of the Federal Reserve Act over 20 years ago, opinion in Congress and among bankers has been striving towards the ideal of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it might be described as the Supreme Court of Finance and Banking. We believe there is greater need now than ever before for realizing this ideal."

Mr. Hecht emphasized that it is "the genuine desire of the banking fraternity to be helpful and constructive in making suggestions in connection with this pending legislation. The changes we are urging are we believe essential to the continued independence of the Federal Reserve System."

"We have made it clear that we do not object to a measure of public control in the national interest for proper coordination of our manifold credit operations," he said, "and we do not believe the sponsors of the legislation desire any political domination over these activities through our Federal Reserve System."

"Under such circumstances we feel that our recommendations should be favorably acted upon because they would enable the reconstructed Federal Reserve Board to function freely as a nonpolitical body actuated only by the dictates of sound financial and economic policies conceived in the interest of all of our people."

The adoption of our suggestions would both place operation of the Federal Reserve System wholly and distinctly apart from the fluctuations and vicissitudes of political conditions and free from undue influence by banking opinion only. Such a solution would thus have a stabilizing and confidence inspiring effect on the entire business situation."

Summer Sweethearts

BEGIN HERE TODAY KATHARINE STRYKHURST, beautiful, 20, is in love with MICHAEL HEATHEROE who runs a riding school. Katharine's father is rich and her stepmother, BERTINE, is snobbish. ZOE PARKER, Katharine's friend, has an unhappy love affair and is saved from suicide by young DR. JOHN KAYE. SALLY MOON, local coquette, tricks Michael into an engagement and, when he tries to wriggle out, tightens her hold. Katharine hears Michael is to marry Sally and is broken-hearted. She overhears two detectives asking for Michael's address and, thinking him in danger, rushes to warn him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIII

MICHAEL said nothing for the space of five minutes, during which Katharine drove furiously. She drew into a side road—a sort of lane, blocked from the main road's view by a screen of apple trees. She had had a picnic here with the Mersey children only the week before.

She shut off the engine. After its steady hum the silence was almost deafening. Half a city block away the roar of steady traffic on a main artery sounded. But here there was the humming of bees in a clover field. And quiet. And a man in the seat beside her, waiting for her to speak.

"Well, what is it?" Katharine had the queerest feeling that she had lived through this scene some time—some place—before. Perhaps in a dream. Her brows drew together in a frowning line.

"Do you think we can be seen from here?" She threw a glance back at the road from which she had come.

Michael shrugged. "No. But why?"

She plunged into her story. "Michael, there are men after you. Down in the village. They're badges—detective shields—or something."

"Detectives?" If he were guilty of some unnamed crime, he maintained a bland air. But hadn't she heard somewhere that criminals are like that?

"Michael!" She felt a sudden fierce rage possess her. That he should be so calm, while she had rushed so madly to warn him!

"Don't you understand?" she cried. "I rushed to tell you—so that you might get away."

"You did that?" His voice sounded odd—almost choked. He was staring at her strangely.

"Yes, and you must run for it," she said on a note of relief and terror, now that he understood. "You mustn't let them get you. Have you any money? If you haven't I can get some from the bank. I'll drive you over to Harmond—the through trains stop there. You can start west."

"No matter what I've done or what I'm running away from?" he asked.

"No matter what!" She was firm about that. There was not a single question in her mind, not an argument to be met. She, who had never broken a single law in all her 20 years, now advised this.

submitted to Congress. On the other hand, he declared that many of the changes proposed by the act in existing laws "are of a constructive nature and should have the support of bankers, if the method of appointment and tenure of office of the members of the Federal Reserve Board, in whose hands it is planned to concentrate greater power than ever before, could be so altered as to insure, as far as possible, the absolute independence of the Board from partisan or political considerations."

Supreme Court of Banking "Since the passage of the Federal Reserve Act over 20 years ago, opinion in Congress and among bankers has been striving towards the ideal of making the Federal Reserve Board a body of such independence and prestige that it might be described as the Supreme Court of Finance and Banking. We believe there is greater need now than ever before for realizing this ideal."

Mr. Hecht emphasized that it is "the genuine desire of the banking fraternity to be helpful and constructive in making suggestions in connection with this pending legislation. The changes we are urging are we believe essential to the continued independence of the Federal Reserve System."

"We have made it clear that we do not object to a measure of public control in the national interest for proper coordination of our manifold credit operations," he said, "and we do not believe the sponsors of the legislation desire any political domination over these activities through our Federal Reserve System."

man to flee. It was as simple as that. "Thank you, Katharine."

It was the first time he had ever called her by her name in that way; naturally and simply. Her eyes, quite involuntarily, filled with tears. She turned away to hide them.

"Don't . . ." That the old, old pain should be beginning again—why, that was unbearable. She had thought to conquer it for all time.

"You're very good to me," he said, low-voiced. His lean, brown fingers closed over her wrist. Her hand lay in his clasp quite unresistingly.

"It was the least I could do," she managed to say, in the silence. "I can't tell you how it makes me feel," he went on, very gently. He had squared about now to face her. Unwillingly she lifted her eyes to his. There was a split second—and then she was in his arms, her face crushed against his shoulder, against the cloth of that worn tweed coat she knew and loved so well.

There was only this moment of weakness. Then the girl pulled herself away. "What can we be thinking of?" she cried. "I must—we both of us must be quite mad."

"Sane for the first time in months, you mean," said the man dryly. "Let's face it, Katharine."

"There's nothing to face," she said stubbornly. "I rush to tell you that you're in trouble; we both have a silly moment. That's all. You wait here, Michael. I'll dash back to town and get you some money. Then I'll drive you to the train."

He had her hand again in that cool, gentle, curiously strong grip. "I'm mad about you," he said. "You've got to hear it now. I've loved you for months. . . ."

"What are you saying? You're going to marry someone else."

"Why not?" She paused to consider this. There were a million reasons to advance against her going with this man. Her home, her life, her training all pointed in the other direction. And yet—and yet—the years stretched out before her in an endless procession.

"I can't," she said dully. "And you know it."

But it might be glorious, her inner self cried, to go off with him like this, without consideration or fear. Only she couldn't—she mustn't allow herself to be tempted.

He folded his arms. "Very well, then. I'll go back and see these rascals, whoever they are."

"You can't do that," she cried. He nodded. "You'll see whether I can or not."

"Michael, you're cruel. How dare you make such a condition? It's not fair or right. I've given you your chance to run for it. You're throwing it away."

"It's you who force me to it," she taunted. "You're just trying me, seeing how far you can go."

"Oh, am I?" asked the man, on a note of dangerous quiet. "If you believe that, then start your car and take me back to the village. I'm ready to see those fellows, whoever they may be."

LEE COUNTY REPUBLICANS ARE ACTIVE

Delegates to Spring- field Convention Named Yesterday

The most enthusiastic meeting of the Lee County Republican central committee in many years was held at the Lowell park lodge yesterday afternoon when County Chairman Henry C. Warner entertained the committeemen. The meeting was called for the purpose of selecting committee members and alternates to attend the Republican convention in Springfield, June 10 and 11, and to discuss general policies.

A committee named by Chairman Warner, consisting of three members, selected the slate of candidates to represent Lee county at the convention and an equal number of alternates. Chairman Warner will head the Lee county delegation and by virtue of their positions, C. C. Willett of the Young Republican's organization, Walter Smith of the Legion Republicans and Mrs. Louis Grampp of the county Women's Republican organization will attend as leaders of these groups. The delegates and alternates selected by the special committee composed of Frank E. Nangle, John W. Banks and Robert W. Sterling are:

Delegates Selected
William V. Slothower, Dixon; Mrs. Florence Plummer White, Dixon; George Carpenter, Amboy; Ralph J. Dean, Ashton; Sherman L. Shaw, Lee Center; Frank Keigwin, Hamilton; Frank E. Nangle, Paw Paw and George C. Dixon, of Dixon.

Alternates—Millard M. Fell, Steward; Fred B. Wood, Ashton; Wellington Chaon, Compton; Martin Lenox, Palmyra; George B. Shaw, Glenn F. Coe and Sterling D. Schrock, Dixon; and Mrs. Lilah Bates, Amboy.

In calling the business session to order at the close of a sumptuous dinner, Chairman Warner presented the call for delegates to the state convention at Springfield, which limited Lee county to eight members aside from the heads of the Republican county organizations, and named the committee to make the selection. The committee retired to make the selections and reported later in the afternoon. Chairman Warner reviewed the problems confronting the 1936 election. He called attention to the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court which he stated would aid materially in restoring the confidence of the American people and bring a return to normalcy, which he added, was well on the way at the close of President Hoover's administration. A strong leader is needed in the Republican party to guide the people back to normalcy, prosperity and their constitutional privileges, he stated in conclusion.

Labor Chiefs Hope—and Fear—and Predict Strife

Ogle County Guests
County Judge Leon Zick and Attorney Don Crowell of Oregon were guests at the meeting and spoke briefly.

County Judge William L. Leech pointed out the necessity for the cessation of the back-biting practices and the barking at the heels as a means of uniting the Republican forces.

George Carpenter of Amboy responded with a short talk. Judge Harry Edwards told the committeemen that the Republican party was moving forward as a unit and in perfect harmony.

Senator George C. Dixon stated that the Republicans at Springfield were proceeding cautiously and were not acting spontaneously but with careful deliberation upon all subjects being presented by the Democratic administration. He added that a uniform harmony existed among the Republicans of this section of Illinois outside Cook county. Referring to the additional sales tax proposition he referred to it as being unnecessary, and voiced the objection of himself and Representatives Henry Allen and Dennis Collins of this district to the measure. He spoke briefly of the Lee county relief administration which he stated had worked faithfully and honestly in spite of hindrances and threats from Washington which have delayed the program. He closed his remarks by stating that he was joining forces with the two Republican representatives of this district against the reprehensible and disgusting Democratic practices by the strong arm of the opposing party.

Democrats Unsound
Representative Dennis Collins of DeKalb, a guest of honor, told the committeemen that the wheels of time are testing the Democratic party. Their policies are unsound and foolish and will in time destroy the party, he continued. The Republicans, while in the minority, have been making their presence known and have called the Democrats' bluff. Commenting upon the additional sales tax, the legislator said that he had not received one single request from this district urging him to support the measure after the radio address made by Governor Horner in support of the measure.

County Treasurer Walter L. Ortgiesen, County Clerk Sterling D. Schrock, Chief Deputy Sheriff Gilbert P. Finch and Sheriff Ward Miller were county officials who responded with remarks. City Attorney Martin J. Gannon commended the action of the Supreme Court in interpreting the laws and upholding the Constitution in the recent decision of the NRA. The findings which he stated were not at all surprising to the common attorney. The state rights as well as the Constitution were being set aside to satisfy one man and a group of college professors, he added until the Supreme Court voiced its opinion without regard to party or author. The American people, he stated, have every precaution as long as an intelligent and responsible Supreme Court exists. He opposed any coalition movement or help from the Democratic party in uniting the Republican party and true Americanism.

Mrs. Louis Grampp, chairman of the Lee county Republican women's organization assured the committee of the support of this branch in the 1936 campaign.

Other speakers were Dr. Frank M. Banker, county coroner; George Schuckie, Brooklyn township; Editor George B. Shaw of the Evening Telegraph; Ralph J. Dean, editor of the Ashton Gazette; Fred B. Wood and Frank Bassler of Ashton. Frank E. Nangle of Paw Paw. The latter advocated a series of regional meetings to be held at the coming election and the chair appointed a committee consisting of Frank E. Nangle, chairman; Geo. Carpenter, Millard M. Fell, George Schuckie and Stoddard Danekas.

King George Rides With Crack Troops

London, June 4.—(AP)—King George V, astride a gentle bay horse, rode with his four sons at the head of a column of crack cavalry and foot soldiers Monday in ancient ceremony of trooping the colors, as a mark of his completion of the Biblical span of three score years and ten.

All the British empire celebrated the King's seventieth birthday anniversary as a holiday, but the ceremonies centered here around the king himself.

His Majesty participated in the trooping wearing the scarlet and gold uniform of colonel-in-chief of the Irish Guards. He saluted right and left with a white gloved hand as he rode from Buckingham palace to the horseguards parade and back again.

From all sides came from the crowds cries of "God bless you, sir!" and "Many happy returns!" and "Long may you live!"

73 BRANCHES OF MOTHERCHURCH DURING A YEAR

Reported to Annual Meeting in Boston Monday Afternoon

Boston, June 4.—(AP)—A. Barry Bacon of Boston and Marshfield, Mass. was elected president of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, at the annual meeting attended by approximately 6,000 members here on Monday.

Bacon, a native of Pontiac, Mich., and a former resident of Washington, in his address declared that "when the whole world was struggling under unemployment, lack, want and woe, Christian Science had come to the rescue of many," and that through its application many had been healed of erroneous conditions.

He stressed the fact that "in the midst of this period the building of a new publishing house, was wisely undertaken," furnishing employment, and placing much money in circulation with the result that "an example of courage and perseverance in right-doing was presented."

Bacon succeeds Dr. John M. Brewer, associate professor at Harvard Graduate School of Education.

Miss Rosamond Wright, manager of the department of branches and practitioners, reported 73 new branches of the Mother Church; 47 in North America; one in South America; 17 in Europe; two in Asia; two in Africa and four in Australasia.

OBSESSION OF PRESIDENT ON POWER CHARGED

Administration Warned Utility Companies Will Fight to End

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—(AP)—The administration was warned today that the nation's utility interests would fight to the finish what was called a "devastating and destructive attack" from the New Deal.

The warning came from Thomas McCarter, president of the Edison Electric Institute, in a speech to more than 1,200 members of the institute here for their annual convention. His hearers included virtually all the utility leaders of the country.

McCarter, head of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, in speaking of President Roosevelt's power program, said:

"I do not think I go too far when I say he seems to have an obsession on this subject."

Seeks Nationalization

"Since the present national administration was inducted into office, there has been launched by it against this industry the most devastating and destructive attack, having for its object the end of private operation of the electric industry and its nationalization under federal direction and ultimate ownership."

He then enumerated various measures he said the administration had directed against utilities, starting with the 3 per cent tax on consumers' bills and culminating in the Wheeler-Rayburn holding bill now before the senate.

He also spoke of the Johnson bill denying the use of federal courts as a forum of original jurisdiction in rate reviews; authorization of a nation-wide investigation into power rates by the federal power commission; development of the "monstrous" Tennessee Valley Authority for the purpose of creating a so-called yardstick of the cost of power; undertakings such as the Donnellville dam and Grand Coulee dam projects, and the attempt to make outright gifts to municipalities for the erection of power plants.

Only two units of the federal government operate at a profit—the patent office and the navigation bureau.

New York, June 4.—(AP)—Jack Lovelock was due in town today bent on settling the issue of who is the world's best competitive miler.

The New Zealander, graduate of Oxford who is completing his medical training in London University, will compete in the "mile of a century" against Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke in Princeton's special invitation meet June 15.

Lovelock beat Bonthron at Princeton two years ago to set a world record of 4:07.6. Cunningham lowered that mark to 4:06.7 in trouncing Bonthron by 40 yards in Princeton's first invitation meet last summer.

INDIAN PRINCE ENTERS FAVORED STEED IN DERBY

155 Year Old Race At Epsom Downs England Today

Epsom Downs, Eng., June 4.—(AP)—By the thousands the racing clans poured today into this village where tomorrow upward for a half million are expected to watch 17 of the English turf's ranking three-year-olds, one of them American-owned, battle over one and one-half miles in the English Derby.

From Cockney to Nobleman there was but one question; will the odds-on-favorite, the Aga Khan's Bahram, win?

It has been 30 years since an odds-on-choice won and then it was Cicero at 4 to 11. By a coincidence the field Wednesday is the same size as on that occasion. Also Bahram is in the same stable that Cicero occupied.

In the long span of years since the Derby was first run in 1780, the lot of the favorite has been pretty dismal. But the turf experts can see no horse capable of whipping Bahram unless it be one of two stablemates—Hailan and Theft.

Seldom, if ever, has one owner sent out such a powerful entry as will represent the Indian potentate, the religious and spiritual leader of more than 100,000,000 Mohammedans. Bahram, winner of the two thousand guineas and unbeaten, is the 10 to 11 choice but Hailan and Theft, both well thought of by their owner, are next in line at 100 to 12 and 100 to 9, respectively. Fourth choice was Lord Astor's Field Trial, 100-8.

The American-owned horse, Mrs. Corlette Glorney's Assination, was considered to have no better than a 50 to 1 chance but he will have the benefit of Steve Donoghue's experience in the saddle.

Stratton May Gain Old White Sox Berth

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—Monte Stratton, a tall young righthander, may be recalled by the Chicago White Sox from St. Paul of the American Association, in an effort to strengthen a pitching staff made wobbly by an injury to Sam Jones and Les Tietje's failure as a starting hurler. Stratton, sent to St. Paul before the American League season opened, has won six games and lost one for the Saints.
